

Kent Hughes- Bio

I began playing guitar and banjo while working as an apprentice at the Laramie Banjo Shop, in my home state of Wyoming. I gave guitar and banjo lessons and played in bands in Montana, before hanging up the instruments to work in the Hollywood film industry.

Retiring from that career, I've come back to music with a vengeance, both playing and studying to become a luthier, under the tutelage of world renowned guitar builder Scott Baxendale.

I've been fortunate to advance my skills while a member of Old Time Fiddlers and look forward to sharing my passion for music with you.

Lesson Information- $35 Per Hour

I can take you from beginning through solid rhythm and flatpicking, using tablature and fundamental exercises.

And, I won't forget to make it fun!